The assessment and.Cancer in patients with chronic hepatitis B. A review of recent literature. Chronic hepatitis B virus (HBV) infection is an important cause of cancer and cirrhosis. For these reasons, new therapeutic modalities must be tested in these patients. A careful review of the recent literature reveals that, in well-treated patients, the incidence of hepatocellular carcinoma (HCC) seems to be not affected by the degree of liver function. However, an increased incidence is seen in patients with cirrhosis. The data on hepatic cell carcinoma that occurs in patients treated with interferon are controversial. The available information is not sufficient to draw any conclusion
